General Advice:

- ✓ In the exam, be aware of timings. As a general rule, 4marks = 5minutes.
So, you should spend 10 minutes on 8-mark questions, 15 minutes on 12-mark questions and 20 minutes on 16-mark questions.
- ✓ The 'stem' of each question will always remain the same. Therefore, you should learn what you should do for each type of question.
- ✓ The 'tail' of the questions will change. Always ensure your answer is focused on this. Link your evidence back to the question. As a general rule, the beginning and end of each paragraph should refer to the question.
- ✓ The provenance of a source is the author, place, time it was created etc. This can be used to understand why a source was written. It might affect the utility. When considering provenance, consider purpose, audience and access to information too.
- ✓ In Section B's there are four SPaG marks available on the final question. These marks can make a big difference so ensure you take extra care over you spelling, punctuation and grammar.

The exam board describe different 'levels of thinking':

Complex	Answers build on the qualities of developed answers. Answers display reasoning that shows the links or connections between evidence or details that are explicitly relevant to the question. Answers may show originality or sophistication. Answers demonstrate substantiated judgement or an awareness of the provisional and problematic nature of historical issues, evidence and interpretations.
Developed	Answers that display more than one step of reasoning or detailed explanation that is explicitly relevant to the question. Answers will sustain an explanation of the differences or similarities in sources or interpretations.
Simple	Answers that describe evidence, features or material relevant to the question. Answers that display simple one step reasoning or brief explanation of a point or comment that is explicitly relevant to the question. Answers may recognise, describe and may explain, simple similarities or differences in sources or interpretations.
Basic	Answers that identify evidence, features or material relevant to the question. Explanation is likely to be implicit or by assertion. Answers take features of sources or interpretations at face value. Material discussed may have implicit relevance.
